HOUSE OF THE WEEK

Special to the Cape May Star and Wave

Unparalleled harbor view on Yacht Avenue

CAPE MAY - If one is looking for a water view in Cape May, there is hardly one more versatile and interesting than the view from the deck of 1534 Yacht, Unit 4.

Situated as it is, one can sit on the deck, which overlooks your own boat slip, and wave to neighbors as they come and go in their own boats. Or watch the Lobster House fishing fleet going out for scallops or bringing them back - just a short walk away to buy fresh seafood. Or watch the U.S. Coast Guard cutters as they get underway or return to their homeport of Cape May.

"You can sit here and view all the private vessels, the commercial fleet from the Lobster House, and Coast Guard vessels from your own deck. There's not another view like this," real estate sales associate Chad deSatnick said.

deSatnick said the deck is situated where it has protection from cool winds, making it possible to enjoy the views and salt air in colder months. All year long, he said, the owners can enjoy morning sunrises from their deck or just inside.

"The deck faces the east, basically, so you can watch the sunrise if you want; then the bedrooms get the setting sun," deSatnick said.

Properties on Yacht Avenue are also a short walk to some of Cape May's favorite dining spots - the Lobster House and Lucky Bones.

"You are in walking distance to the entire marina district," deSatnick said. "The Lobster House, Mayers for scallops, Cappi's Pizza..."

deSatnick said it is also a short bike ride to anywhere on the island.

From Pittsburgh and Beach Avenue it's less than two miles to the Cove. It's
